

About the authors

Martin Rupiya is a senior researcher in the Defence Sector Programme at the ISS. He holds a PhD from the University of Zimbabwe.

Willibrod Peter Slaa is a Member of the Tanzanian Parliament who has been seconded to the SADC Parliamentary Forum in Windhoek, Namibia. He coordinates the work of parliamentarians in the SADC region. He holds a PhD from the Pontifical Urban University, Rome.

Mwesiga Baregu is a professor in the Politics and Public Administration Department at the University of Dar es Salaam. He is also an external examiner at several universities in the region and is author of several publications in regional security. He holds a PhD from Stanford University.

Thandi Ruth Modise was a member of the South African Joint Standing Committee of Parliament on Defence during the period 1994–99 as well as Chairperson of the Portfolio Committee on Defence until April 2004. She is currently the Speaker of the North West Province Legislature.

Emanuel Chungu is a member of the Zambian Parliamentary Committee on National Security and Foreign Affairs.

Clarence Tshitereke is a senior researcher on Conventional Arms Transfer in the Arms Management Programme at the ISS.

Len Le Roux is head of the Defence Sector Programme at the ISS. He is a retired Major General from the South African National Defence Force and was involved in the defence transformation process in South Africa from 1995 to 2000.

Naison Ngoma is a senior researcher in the Defence Sector Programme at the ISS. He was previously a lecturer in the Department of Political Science at the University of the Western Cape. He is a PhD candidate on the theme of collaborative security in SADC.